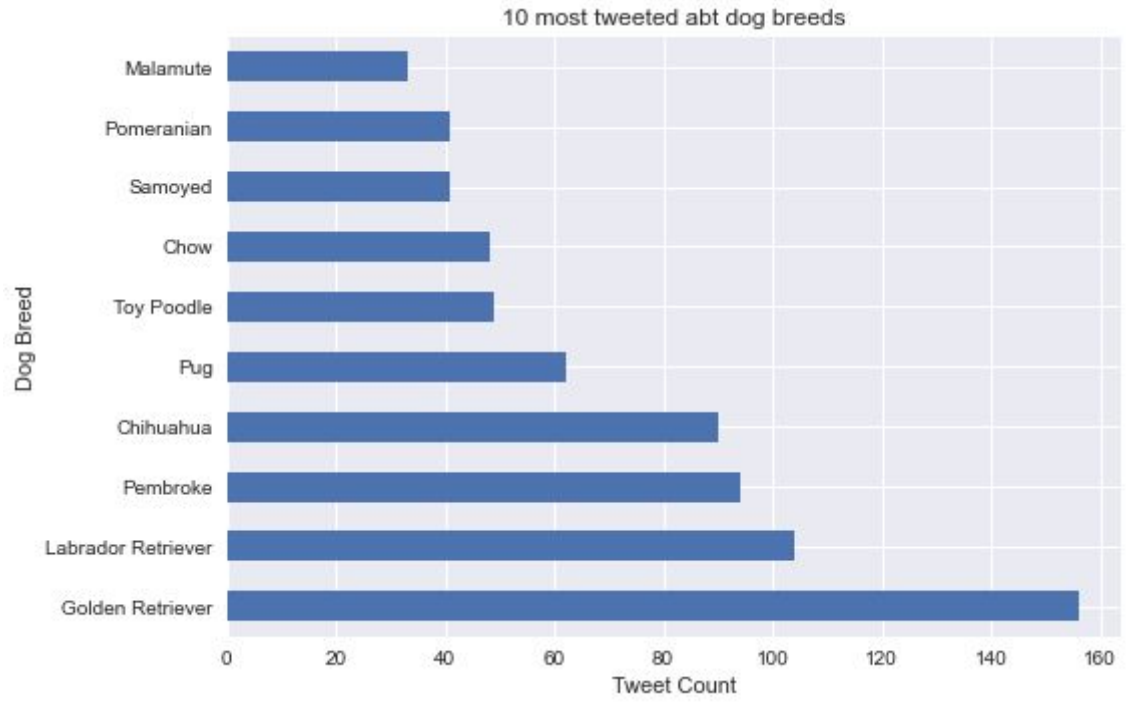
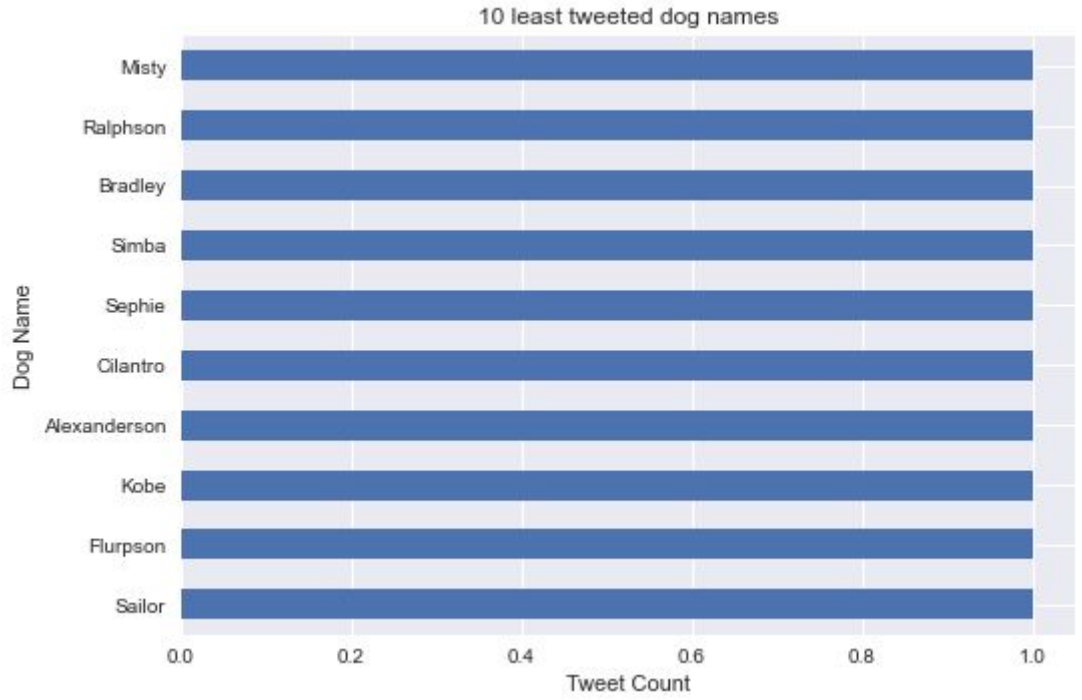
This is a summary of the insights that I was able to draw based on tweets I collected from WeRateDogs on twitter. This account tweets pictures of dogs and rates them on a scale from 1-10. However, since some dogs are very adorable they might receive a rating of more than 10!

The data set I collected contains 113 different dog breeds. The images were run through a neural network to classify their breeds.

Through data wrangling and data visualizations I came up with the following conclusions: The 10 most tweeted about dog breeds are:



The 10 least tweeted about dog breeds are:



Out of all the collected tweets, on average, Bedlington Terrier has the highest favorites count at 22469 likes while Brabancon Griffon has lowest favorite count at 781 likes only.

Out of all the collected tweets, on average, Bedlington Terrier also has the highest retweet count at 7063 retweets while Groenendael has lowest favorite count at 236 likes only.

Moreover, Clumber is highest rated with an average of 27/10 while Japanese Spaniel is lowest rated (5/10).

Every tweet by WeRateDogs received 8391 favourites and 2425 retweets on average.

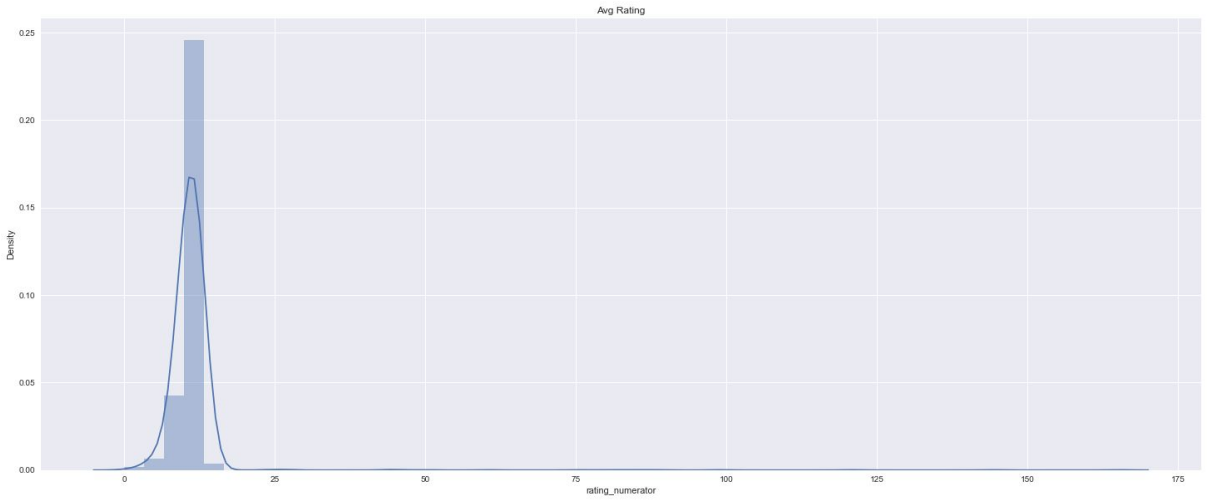
Furthermore, every dog received an average rating of 11/10.



In addition, it turns out that some dog names are more likable than others. For example, dogs that are named Stephan got 116832.0 likes while Christoper got 171 on average. When it comes to dog names and average number of retweets. The name Stephan takes the lead again with 54622 retweets while Bloo has the least with just 37 retweets.
Below you can see the 10 most and least popular dog names.